GIRL GAVE AT LEE STATION. What the Police Discovered in and-Jessie Tramps Nine Miles-The Mystery Complicated. The revelations of the last twenty-four ours have thrown a new light upon the Jessie Miller" case. Yesterday morning will be remembered the Disparch published a letter from Lee, on the Richmond and Alleghany railroad, stating that a woman answering Jessie's description took the train there for Richmond on the eve ning of the 28th (the 27th was intended). The police had received information to the same effect, and yesterday morning Captain Angle, of the Second district, and Officer Walton, who found the girl in the street here Monday night, made a trip up the Alleghany road to follow up this clue. ON THE BIGHT TRACK.

ON THE BIGHT TRACK.

When Jessie was taken to the station-house Monday night she had in her possession a piece of thick brown wrapping paper, on which was the address "Mary Lou Turner, isquean." This the officers took along with them. Arriving at Lee they found that they were on the right scent as far as her having been there was concerned. They discovered that on the evening of the 27th Jessie, who was walking down the track from the direction of Maiden's Adventure, approached a negro man and two negro girls who were minding cows about two miles from Lee, and asked them how far it was to the next station. One of the girls was Mary Lou Turner. After some further conversation she requested the negro girls to accompany her to the station, which they consented to do.

THE STORY OF THESE GIRLS.

The STORY OF THESE GIBLS.

The STORY OF THESE GIBLS.

The story of these girls is that during the walk Jessie stopped several times and sung and danced on the railroad track. She told Mary Lou Turner that she had been a nurse in an insane asylum and asked her if there were police in Richmond and how they dressed. Mary Lou replied that there were and described the police uniform. Jessie then asked if abe acted funny in the streets would the police enter the streets would the police. police uniform. Jessie then asked if she cted funny in the streets would the police ake her in and was assured that they would.

At the station she laughed and chatted with the negro girls, and remarked to the agent that he must think that she was crazy, and when she priced the ticket to Richmond and was informed that it was seventy-five cents said that was all the money she had.

THE TWO ADDRESSES.

Before being put on the train she took Mary Lou's address, and told the negrogirl to write to her. The latter said she did not know her "direction," whereupon Jessie gave her the following: "Jossie Bell Hopper, city insylum." This is in the possession of Captain Angle, and is written on the same kind of paper as that on which the negro girl's name is written. The handwriting of both addresses is illiterate, and is the same, and Mary Lou says both were written by Jossie.

WALKED NINE MILES. THE TWO ADDRESSES. WALKED NINE MILES.

The police traced Jessie as far as Irving, nine miles above Lee, and found that she had walked the distance between the two-stations. They have also learned that a short while ago a girl who acted very much as Jessie has done here was at Clifton Forge and at a later period at Lynchburg. A POLICE THEORY.

Their theory now is that Jessie tramps through the country and whenever she wants a rest plays insane in order to get into some public institution. But all this does not relieve the case of mystery. In a measure it complicates the mystery. In the first place it is almost impossible to reconcile such an illiterate chirography and Jessie's cultivated language and the knowledge of technical terms she showed in speaking of a severe surgical operation that had been performed upon her. In the second place, there has been no shamming about the attacks she has had while at the almshouse, nor could she have very well acted the refinement that has characterized everything she has said and done ever since she has been in that institution. Their theory now is that Jessie tramp NOT TOLD ALL.

That Jessie has not teld all she knows is very evident, but it is probable that there is a deeper mystery attaching to her case and her life than many who have studied and ner life than many who have studied it closely have even suspected. The tramp theory is not the only one that has color. For the last two days Jessio's mind has been perfectly clear.

Wednesday Jessio admitted to Officer Wednesday Jessio admitted to Officer

Walton and the Disparen reporter that she had been to more than one drugstore on the evening of her arrival. This admisthe evening of her atlvar. The accuration in soon was made during the conversation in which she insisted that she had walked from one depot to another in Riemmond.

**EEN IN DAD COMPANY.**

Yesterday it was learned that on Monday afternoon a girl who fits the description of Jessie went to Scott's drugstore, corner of Franklin and Seventeenth streets, and asked the clerk to give her the address of J. M. Marshall. The clerk referred to the directory and gave her the number 1217 cast Marshall. Councilman Charles E. Brauer was in the store when the girl entered. The resolution under which the Legislative Debt Commission was raised does not authorize those gentlemen to consider any proposition exceeding the terms of the Riddleberger act. The question, though, it is said, is whether the resolution is intended to limit the commission to the original act or as it has been amended in recent years. If it construed to mean the latter it will make a difference of about six million dollars—the amount of the outlawed coupons under the Wiecham act. From this it will be seen that there is a different construction placed upon the meaning of the Riddleberger act.

No practical steps can be taken toward a settlement until 1,000,000 of Virginia bonds have been deposited with the State.

The Governor said yesterday afternoon that he was not prepared to give anything to the papers touching the debt.matter.

Phil. Kearny Post, G. A. R., is making the usual arrangements for its annual observance of decoration-day services, May 30th. This year, while sending special details to other cemeteries surrounding Richmond, they will give particular attention to the cemeteries at Cold Harbor and Seven Pines. The post will visit these cemeteries in a body and at each will have elaborate ceremonies as provided for in the Grand Army of the Reutblic service-book. A meeting of their Memorial Committee will be held Wednesday evening next, when the Programme will be completed and when it will be determined which cemetery will be visited first on that day. Last year 1,500 flags, 1,000 bouquets, and barrels of loose flowers were distributed, besides the planting of 500 rose-bushes, and this year it is expected they will be able to be more generous in their tributes to their departed comrades.

see how highly his splendid effort was appreciated.

In speaking of the Bible, Mr. Calish commented on the fact that though repeated efforts had been made to pick the Book of Books to pieces, it remained intact, the foundation of all law, human and divine. That it was the work of men who were inspired by God himself admitted of no doubt, and even Time, the destroyer of all else, could not touch it.

In the delivery of his two sermons here hir. Calish used no notes whatever. On both occasions there were large crowds, and so far as could be learned there was not a single one of his hearers who was not pleased with him.

Mr. Calish expects to return home tomorrow.

It was a most beautiful day, with delicious temperature, and we enjoyed one of the most lovely drives in the world. I cannot begin to describe it, my pen would fall far short of giving you even a faint idea of the glopious panorama spread out before us as we ascend mountains to an elevation of about

There will be a meeting of those interested in the organization of the boat club to be established under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. The constitution and by-laws for the new club will be submitted and other important business transacted. A dozen or more prominent members of the Chamber of Commerce have been invited to be present. THE ST. JOHN'S ANNIVERSARY. Its Sesqui-Centennial to Be Celebrated or the 10th of June.

The sesqui-centennial of old St. John's church will be celebrated on the 10th of June next, and the occasion promises to be one of marked interest. The reason that date has been selected is that on the vestry-books is an entry showing that one kandolph contracted to build the church and have it completed by June 10, 1741.

The programme of the celebration has not been perfected in all its details, nor is it yet definitely known who will take the prominent parts in the ceremonies, but this much has been decided upon: A morning service will be held at which there will be a sermon dealing with the ecclesiastical history of Henrico parish. In the evening there will be in addition to the regular services an essay treating of the place of the church in natural history and an oration. hurch will be celebrated on the 10th o utting in the church a memorial in the orm of a handsome lecturn which is much

The Governor Declined with Thanks.
Governor McKinney yesterday received a letter from A. K. Smiley, of Mohawk Lake, New York, requesting him to be present at a conference on the negro problem to be held at that place June 3d, 4th, and 5th next. The letter states that no political question will be discussed. The Governor declined with thanks. The musical comedy Happy Days will be given at Belvidere Hall next Thursday night by a talented combination of local artists. The proceeds of the entertainment will be turned over to the Entertaining Committee of the Independent Order of Red Men of the city.

Confederate Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Association.
Secretary's Office,
Richmond, Va., May 2, 1891.
Mr. J. Taylor Stratton, the agent of this association, has collected and this day paid to the Treasurer the following contributions to the monument fund: Colonel John B. Cary, $100: Major James W. Pegram, $10: George E. Fisher, Eq., $100. George W. Anderson & Son, $25; J. B. Tree, Esq. $10: Colonel W. H. Palmer, $15; Captain E. D. Starke, $20—total, $290.
Mr. Stratton has not been able to devote much time during the past week to the work of the association, but he has met with great encouragement. A large number of our citizens have promised to contribute and all who have done so expressed themselves gratified that the privilege was afforded them of contributing to the patriotic work of building a monument to the private solders and sailors of the Confederacy, Mr. Stratton will hereafter give the whole of his time and attention to a canvass of the city, and we ask for him that consideration which the cause merits.

President Confederate Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Association. Miss Lowry, who has been filling an engagement at a place of amusement on Broad street for some time, is not yet of age. Mr. Graham, who is employed at the same place, became enamoured of the young lady, who for her part reciprocated the feeling. They decided to marry, but could not do so under the law of this State, the intending bride being a minor, until certain formalities were complied with. This consisted mainly of having a guardian appointed for the young lady, who could with his consent be then lawfully married.

A. HUTZLER'S SONS,

As nearly every family has to do some

Mr. Barton came down to the Chancery Court with the couple early in the morning to qualify as guardian. Judge Witt, thinking it a case where property was invoived, required security to be given. For one cause and other no less than half a dozen trips were made to the court-house, and it was nearly 6 o'clock in the afternoon when the trio repaired to the Clerk's office of the Hustings Court to get the license. 315 east Broad street.

Mr. Barton, the guardian, and the groom took their stand in front of the table, and the bride-to-be was given a seat to the right of Deputy Walter Christian, upon whom devolved the task of making out the license. She is quite pretty, of the brunette type, tall and slender, of modest demeanor, and seemed to fully realize the seriousness of the step she was to take, as well as the embarrassment of her position. shopping in the Dry Goods line about this season of the year, it is well for the shoppers to know what is the best A DISTINGUISHED ASSEMBLY. Just in the rear of the two already mentioned sat Judge Witt in the commodious chair usually occupied by Clerk Lawton. His "shadow," Judge Roberts, was perched on a desk to the right of the party. A Disparch reporter and another newspaper-man, each of whom was comfortably ensconced in an easy chair, comguide for pursuing that course, which to some is a great pleasure and to others just the reverse. If we had to express our advice in a single sentence we should fortably ensconced in an easy chair, com-pleted the assemblage.

Deputy Christian opened the proceed-ings by asking Mr. Barton if he was will-ing that his ward should marry Mr. Graham. Answer being made affirmatively. Graham was asked to give his age. He stated it to be one year less than a quarter say : Avoid the merchant whose reputation is based solely upon shrewdness, and seek the one who is known to be honest of a century. In reply to another question he said that he had never been married The one you select may be shrewd

"Where were you born?"

"At Alexandria, under protest," spoke up the contemplating husband.

"Was the protest on the part of the Alexandria people?" simultaneously inquired both newspaper-men.

Having safely passed the ordeal Graham remarked "Well, I will know how to go about it better the next time," which expression was hardly calculated to make his affianced feel very comfortable. also, but he will be wise enough to give his customers the full benefit of the knowledge he has gleaned from experience and you are safe in his hands. closely this season and but little that Miss Lowry was next questioned by Mr. Christian. She said she was a native of Philadelphia, and was twenty years of age. Her father and mother had the good, sensible names of James and Mary.

This ended this part of the performance, and the groom passed over the requisite dollar. Judge Roberts admonished him that while it only stood him that small sum to get into matrimony, it would cost him a great deal more to get out. was worth knowing as to styles, prices, or fabrics has escaped our notice.
